

Case study

Centralized Customer Outreach, Marketing Automation for Large Insurance Holding Company

Client

Our client is a leading property & casualty insurance holding company with over 50 specialized businesses - each with deep expertise in an industry, product and region.

Challenges

Our client has multiple business groups as part of their large holding that caters to particular insurance products. Each business unit leveraged its CRM and marketing tools, without a centralized way to segment and engage customers. Their siloed ways of running campaigns limited their ability to drive growth through cross-selling, manage customer profiles and preferences, and track marketing performance.

LTIMindtree Solution

LTIMindtree eliminated the marketing process and data silos by migrating the entire email campaign management system from legacy to Salesforce Marketing Cloud. We used Marketing Cloud connect and multi-org connector to integrate and bring together information across multiple Salesforce Sales Cloud instances. In addition, a complex preference management program has been implemented to drive better engagement with the company brands.

LTIMindtree introduced automation and segmentation to initiate email campaigns for different scenarios.

This eliminated manual work for the marketing team, giving them the bandwidth to focus on other high-value tasks. The campaigns and journeys were integrated with payment processes to improve cash collections.
